MEDIA ADVISORY:
Saturday at the Washington Winter Show features celebrity Design Panel and Motley Fool lecture

WASHINGTON, D.C.: The Board of the Washington Winter Show invites you to join them for two exciting events on Saturday, January 13, 2018 in conjunction with this year's Show: The Charm of Chinoiserie. First, at 11am, is the second annual Design Panel, lead this year by House Beautiful editor in chief, Sophie Dow Donelson. Later that afternoon, The Motley Fool co-founder David Gardner takes the stage to offer his take on investing today. Both events will take place at the Katzen Arts Center and are included with admission to the Show.

WHAT: 2018 Design Panel: What "Formal" Means Today, with Sophie Dow Donelson of House Beautiful, and designers Markham Roberts and Alexa Hampton

WHEN: Saturday, January 13, 2018 11am-12pm

WHAT: 2018 Saturday Lecture: Foolish Thoughts on Investing, Business & Life with David Gardner of the The Motley Fool

WHEN: Saturday, January 13th 4:30pm — 5:30pm

For additional details, or to attend either event, please contact Jonathan Willen at jon@jonathangwillen.com, 202-528-7004.

The 2018 Show welcomes back many familiar faces with over 40 dealers from across the U.S. and Europe, offering a broad range of exquisite antiques and fine arts. Once again, proceeds will benefit the Washington Winter Show's charity partners: THEARC, Bishop John T. Walker School, and the Founders Board of St. John's Community Services. The Show runs January 12-14, at the Katzen Arts Center.
